Prime Time literacy program comes to Gibbon

Prime Time Family Reading Time, a Nebraska Humanities Council (NHC) family literacy program for low-income families, will be presented in Gibbon with opportunities for both Spanish- and English-speaking parents and their children.

The Gibbon Public Library will host the series on six consecutive Tuesday evenings from April 24 through May 29. Each program begins with a light dinner and continues with storytelling and discussion based on award-winning children's literature.

The six-week series of reading and discussion is designed for families with children ages six to 10. It includes sessions on fairness, greed, courage, dreams and loyalty. All books are read and discussed in both English and Spanish.

Discussion leader Lisa Brown-Olsen and storyteller Joan Gardner, both from Grand Island, will introduce parents to the benefits and pleasures of reading and discussing stories with their children. Families will also learn about library resources and services. Separate pre-reading activities will be available for younger siblings.

Prime Time reinforces the role of the family in society, encourages parents and children to form bonds over reading and learning together, and teaches parents and children to read and discuss humanities topics. The program also encourages low-literacy, low-income parents to enter or continue their own educational programs to improve their employment opportunities.

"It is so important for children to learn the joys of reading early in life, especially when it involves reading and discussing books with their families. A love for learning through reading has a positive impact on how well a child does in school," said NHC Program Officer Erika Hamilton. "We're pleased to be working with the Gibbon Public Library to offer this exciting family literacy program to the citizens of Gibbon."

Initially developed as an English-only program by the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, bilingual Prime Time sessions have been held in Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island, Hastings, Lexington, South Sioux City, Norfolk, Scottsbluff, and other Nebraska communities over the last several years. This will be Gibbon's first Prime Time.

Bilingual Prime Time programs are sponsored in Nebraska by the NHC, the State of Nebraska, the Nebraska Library Commission, and TierOne Charitable Foundation. The NHC is a private, statewide, non-profit affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.
